

Capitol Connection Q&A for Contractors
By Shauna Krause, President, Capitol Services, Inc.

I would never 'hazard' a guess in answering our first contractor who needs facts fast! Another contractor is asking for help sorting out fact from 'fiction' while I help clarify an attorney's 'objection' to his client's competitive issues...

Q: My company has been asked to do some power pole painting for one of the large Energy Companies in California. Obviously, we need to obtain a CA Contractor's license in order to take this on. We plan on getting the "C-33" (Painting) license first, however the Energy Company informed us that we also would require a "C-10" (Electrical) and Hazmat certification to perform the tower painting scope. You have already informed us of the requirement for the "C" classifications, but what are the requirements for the Hazmat Certification?

A: The HAZ certification is an "add on" certification. A licensed contractor is required to hold the "A" (General Engineering), "B" (General Building), "C-12" (Earthwork and Paving), "C-36" (Plumbing), "C-57" (Well Drilling), or the "C-61/D-40" (Service Station Equipment and Maintenance) in order to be permitted to add the HAZ certification. The Qualifier of one of these classifications is also required to take the exam in order to have the certification added. Call me for further assistance.

Q: I have been doing hotel room preparation for many years and it has come to my attention that a Contractor's License may be needed, however I'm getting conflicting information. Basically, what we do to prep the rooms is install furniture which sometimes involves bolting a headboard to the wall or attaching a heavy desk or shelf to the wall. We sometimes install vanities, but no hook ups or anything. Basically, the work involves screwing hardware in the studs on the wall.

A: If the cost of a hotel furniture installation project is $500 or more, including labor and materials, a contractor's license is required. The "D-34" (Prefabricated Equipment) class would be the most appropriate for the anchored furnishings.

Q: I'm an attorney and one of my clients who is a contractor, is seeking advice about a competitor contractor and whether the competitor is contracting out of scope. His competitor has done several jobs recently which involve painting and roofing. In doing some research, according to B&P Code Section 7057, it seems to me that a "B" Contractor is required to be performing framing or carpentry plus two unrelated trades on any one job. Does that mean my client's competitor is contracting out of scope?

A: In order to qualify to obtain a "B" license, the Qualifier is required to document four years of full-time experience doing General Building work. This must include framing and at least two unrelated trades. Once the license is in place, a General Building contractor can only contract for work involving at least two unrelated trades. Roofing and painting would be unrelated, so it sounds like your client's competitor is contracting within their scope.

It sounds like where you are confusing B&P Code 7057 is in order to qualify for the license initially, a General Building contractor must document their experience doing framing and at least two unrelated trades, however once the license is obtained, framing/carpentry are not required to be performed on every job, as long as at least two unrelated building trades are included. Among the most complex rules of law, I always welcome attorney calls to help clear the air on license rules and interpretation in CA, NV and AZ.

Nevada County based Amvic-Pacific offers this seminar for contractors, architects, engineers and building officials interested in learning how to use ICFs (Insulating Concrete Forms) to construct the exterior shell of a residential or commercial structure.

This class will be taught in a one day split format with the morning session covering introduction, features, and benefits of ICF construction. The afternoon session covers installation of ICF, integrating other trades, below grade applications, and basic estimating and construction details.

This class will be a mix of instructor-led class room presentations and hands-on-demonstration of the basics of construction of residential and light commercial structures using insulating concrete forms (ICF) for the exterior wall system. Also covered will be instruction in using insulating concrete forms (ICF) in the construction of floors and/ or roofs.

What the Course Covers

Morning Session (8:30am-11:30am, Refreshments provided)

- Introduction to building with ICF
- Features & Benefits of ICF construction :
 - Energy-efficiency
 - Fire resistance,
 - Sound resistance
 - Durability
- Efficiency in Construction and performance
- Advantages of ICF construction with current building code
- Basic cost estimating
- Local products and services available

Afternoon Session: (11:30am-4:30pm, Lunch will be provided)

- Tools required for installation
- Footing types and preparation
- Basics of block installation and assembly
- Rebar placement & installation
- Window and door installation
- Top plate/sill & truss/rafter attachment
- Bracing and pouring ICF walls
- Forming & pouring elevated concrete floors/roofs using ICF
- Utility installation: electrical & plumbing
- Below grade installation and waterproofing
- Multi-story applications
- Wall claddings (drywall, stucco, siding, etc.)

Here's what one participant had to say:

"We completed our first pour a week or so back and I'm happy to say it was a great success. As you know I am an owner builder with little background in construction. Thanks to your very thorough workshop and excellent step-by-step supporting materials in addition to your personal support of our project we have been able to take on the construction of our 2 story, 2600 sq foot home. Apart from help on the day of the pour itself, my wife and I did all the ICF block work ourselves. There was a learning curve, but we were patient, paid attention to your good advice, and lo and behold it can all be done with two novices! We think the key to avoiding mishaps was simply following the recommended process and lessons learned from your training."
