

Capitol Connection Q&A for Contractors
By Shauna Krause, President, Capitol Services, Inc.

I touch on 'pass/fail' in licensing success rates. While my expert assistance is what contractors need, I also give them hope there is an answer! But sometimes, the right answer isn't what they expect...

Q: My California Contractor's license expires on March 31st. I saw online the CSLB is working on active renewal applications they received on February 25th. Therefore, I know my license is going to go expired for a period of time. Is there any way at all you can help?

A: I can at least give you some comforting news. The CSLB has put a new law in place which they are currently implementing that requires them to retroactively reinstate an expired contractor license if a completed license renewal application is received with the appropriate fees within 90 days of the license expiration date. Additionally, once the CSLB receives your renewal application and appropriate fee, they will make a notation on your license stating "the renewal has been received but not yet processed", which is also comforting to your customers who may be alarmed that your license is reflecting "expired".

Q: I currently have a "C-20" (HVAC) and a "C-36" (Plumbing) license. We have always done Fire Sprinkler repair, inspection, and installation with the understanding it was permitted for residential work. We don't ever do Commercial work. Can you confirm that we are within the CSLB guidelines, or is there some other designation we need to have?

A: The only CSLB license classification which is permitted to perform any type of fire protection systems is the "C-16" Fire Protection classification. Let me know if you'd like our assistance with adding the "C-16" classification to your license.

Q: Can a Canadian company obtain Contractor's licenses in California and Nevada? Will we need to have an address in California and Nevada in order to obtain Contractor licenses?

A: Yes, of course a Foreign Company can obtain a Contractor's License in California and Nevada! Just keep in mind that everyone listed on the California application (meaning all personnel) is required to have a US Social Security Number. Nevada doesn't have that same requirement. As far as an address, your Company itself is not required to have its own physical address. but in both States your Company will need to have a Registered Agent with an address in that State.

Q: What is the pass percentage I need to score on my Contractor's License exams?

A: The CSLB does not publish or disclose the exact passing score you need to have, and every classification/test is different, but in my experience, it's 67% - 72% range.

While knowledge is power, knowing where to go for the answers is half the battle. INTRODUCTION

Gas torch welding was invented in the early 1900s and has since been used for a variety of tasks. Just like every tool, however, the improper use of equipment can cause serious harm. But you can protect your safety and your facilities by knowing the procedures, following instructions, using new safety features, and staying aware of conditions around you.

PERSONAL PROTECTIVE EQUIPMENT

- Welding Gloves
- Keep gloves free from grease and oil: violent reactions can occur when pure oxygen comes in contact with grease or oil.
- Long sleeves and pants provide proper protection from heat and sparks.
- Goggles protect your eyes from sparks, debris, and light.

PROCEDURE

- Inspect your torch, torch attachments, and hoses for irregularities.
- Check the location of your hoses; be sure sparks or slag won't fall on them.
- Purge your hoses by letting them run for about 2-3 seconds before lighting the torch.
- Only use approved lighters.
- Never use matches, cigarettes, or cigarette lighters to light a torch.
- Turn on/light the fuel gas first.
- Never light both the fuel gas and the oxygen at the same time.
- If the flame smokes, increase the gas until the smoke disappears.
- Add the oxygen until there is a well-defined cone of flame.

BURN BACK

When the oxygen in the cylinder gets low or empty, the gases start to reverse their flow. The fuel gas, at a higher pressure, travels up the oxygen line and mixes with the gas inside the hose, cylinder and regulator. If the lines aren't properly purged before lighting, an explosion in the hose, regulator or cylinder might occur.

BACKFIRE

Backfire is when the flame momentarily goes back into the torch and then reappears or goes out. You will hear a popping noise when this happens. It is usually caused by an overheated torch or by bumping the tip into whatever is being welded. Sometimes the fire continues to burn and will be accompanied by a whistling noise. This can be prevented if you don't keep your torch too close to what is being welded.

FLASHBACK

When the tip of the torch is clogged, flashback can occur. Flashback is the return of the flame into the torch, the mixing chamber, the hose, or even the cylinder, which can cause an explosion. To prevent a flashback explosion:

- Make sure your torch tip is clear of clogs
- Use a flash arrestor on your torch: this piece of equipment stops the fire before it can get back into the hose
- If you don't have a flash arrestor, destroy the fire by turning off the oxygen

CONCLUSION

Take your time to be sure you're using the welding torch correctly. Remember to wear the proper gear, inspect your equipment for irregularities, and take steps to prevent the different hazards from occurring.
