

Capitol Connection Q&A for Contractors
By Shauna Krause, President, Capitol Services, Inc.

With texting more often these days life is becoming a hash of acronyms, aka OMG. Contractors are already used to dealing with an 'alphabet soup' of them to describe rules and regulations that you may need 'spelled out' by an expert. RMO, RME, LLC and HAZ, oh my...

Q: I currently am a licensed General Engineering ("A") contractor. I also have the HAZ and ASB certifications. I plan to retire and my son is going to take over the business. I understand he can ask for a Waiver of the exams. Am I correct?

A: Yes, B&P Code Section 7065.1 allows for him to request a Waiver of the "A" exams if he has been actively engaged in the business for at least five out of the last seven years. However, the HAZ and ABS certifications are not subject to Waivers. He will need to apply for the certifications separately and take those exams.

Q: The President of our corporation is currently the Responsible Managing Officer (RMO) on our license and he is retiring and transferring his shares of the corporation to me. I've always worked in the office side of the company so I won't qualify to be the RMO. We currently don't have any employees and I need to hire someone to replace my partner, but I don't want to have to start paying for Worker Compensation insurance. If I decide to elect the new Qualifier as an Officer (RMO), is the RMO required to have a percentage of ownership? If he doesn't have any ownership, does that trigger the need for Worker Comp?

A: No, an RMO is not required to have any ownership in the company. With zero ownership, he/she can only Qualify one Active license. Ownership does not play a role in the need for Worker's Compensation insurance. Worker's Comp is only required for companies that have employees.

Q: We currently have two licensed corporations in California. We are going to open a third entity, which will operate as a Limited Liability Company (LLC), and we need to form a Joint Venture (JV) between the new LLC and one of the currently licensed corporations. My question is two parts. First, can we apply for a Joint Venture license with only one entity being actively licensed, or do we need to obtain a license for the LLC prior to applying for the JV License?

The two existing corporate licenses share the same RMO. He is 50% owner of each company, including the new LLC to be formed. In the case that the LLC needs a license prior to applying for the JV and we use the same RMO, would we need to find a new Qualifying Individual for the Joint Venture license since our RMO will be at his limit of 3 licenses?

A: To answer the first part of your questions, a Joint Venture license in California is made up of two licensed contractors, so the new LLC will need to obtain its own license prior to applying for a JV license.

Regarding your second question, Joint Venture licenses don't count in the "up to 3 licenses at the same time" rule. All Qualifying Individuals from each entity of a JV must be listed on and sign the application.

Trisha Tillotson Appointed as Nevada County's Community Development Agency Director

Nevada County's Public Works Director, Trisha Tillotson, has been appointed as Nevada County's Community Development Agency (CDA) Director beginning June 27th. CDA includes Nevada County's Agricultural Commissioner, Building, Environmental Health, Planning, and Public Works departments.

"Our CDA Director oversees over 130 staff and important land-use and environmental services that are vital to the quality of life we have in Nevada County," said Alison Lehman, County Executive Officer. "After a successful and competitive recruitment, I'm excited to share that Trisha will be stepping into this new role. She is incredibly smart, deeply connected to our community, well respected for her knowledge statewide, and an in-depth problem solver."

"I am looking forward to continuing to serve Nevada County in a broader role as the Community Development Agency Director," said Trisha Tillotson, currently Nevada County's Public Works Director. "Through collaboration with CDA and County staff, our community partners, and citizens, CDA will continue to improve our public services with a focus on inclusive community engagement, transparent communication, and important community issues such as emergency preparedness, broadband, housing, economic development, cannabis and homelessness issues."

Trisha Tillotson has a Bachelor of Science in Civil Engineering from California State University, Chico, and is a Professional Civil Engineer. Trisha more recently became a Credentialed California County Senior Executive. Before coming to Nevada County to serve as our Public Works Director in 2017, Trisha worked for the City of Grass Valley Public Works Department for over 12 years. Trisha's experience also includes working for a private engineering firm for one year and more than two years with Caltrans.

Trisha is a Nevada County local, graduating from Nevada Union High School and, more recently, the Nevada County Community Leadership Institute. She lives in Grass Valley with her husband John and is grateful that her children and grandchild also reside in Nevada County.

HEAT ILLNESS PREVENTION: HYDRATION

INTRODUCTION

Water makes up about 80% of the brain and is an essential element in neurological transmissions.

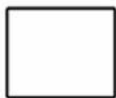

Poor hydration adversely affects our mental performance and learning ability.

What is dehydration?

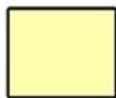

- Dehydration is simply not having enough water in your body. It may result from inadequate water intake and/or from losing body water and can develop rapidly or slowly.

How can you tell if you are dehydrated?

- Irritability
- Fatigue and less able to concentrate
- Tiredness
- Headache
- Dry mouth
- Increased thirst
- Eyes stop making tears
- Sweating stops
- Nausea & vomiting
- Heart palpitations
- Light headedness
- Decreased urine output.
(Urine becomes more yellow in color.)

Symptoms of severe dehydration are:

- Increased heart rate
- Confusion
- Weakness
- Coma
- Organ failure
- Death

HEAT ILLNESS PREVENTION: HYDRATION

How much should we drink?

- The standard recommendation is at least 6-8 glasses a day.
- Drink regularly throughout the day, ensuring that plenty of additional fluid is taken in during warm weather.
- Replace electrolytes by drinking fluids that replace the electrolytes.

How does hydration work?

- The skin is the key to the body's ability to regulate its temperature (thermoregulation). Once the brain senses that there is an increase in temperature, it initiates thermoregulatory mechanisms.
- The skin is the main cooling organ. It maximizes heat loss by using radiation, convection, conduction and evaporation.
 - Radiation: heat is directly lost to the atmosphere.
 - Convection: heat loss is facilitated by moving air or water vapor.
 - Conduction: heat loss by direct contact with a cooler body.
 - Evaporation: heat is lost by turning liquid (sweat) into vapor (the skin's major heat loss mechanism).

CONCLUSION

Your body gets rid of water faster than it can absorb it. A mere two-percent drop in body water can trigger fuzzy short-term memory, trouble with basic math, and difficulty focusing. Once crewmembers begin to feel thirsty, they are already becoming dehydrated.

Note: Many of us don't know that drinking coffee or soda pop is NOT a substitute for drinking adequate amounts of water. In fact, since coffee contains caffeine (even decaffeinated coffee contains small amounts of caffeine), and soft drinks are often highly sweetened, they are not really "thirst quenchers." For each ounce of caffeine or soda intake, one should replenish with the same amount of water.
