Capitol Connection Q&A for Contractors
By Shauna Krause, President, Capitol Services, Inc.

Keeping your paperwork up to date is important for contractors, and especially in the 'right' order! A couple of inquiries concerned with Limited Liability Companies get multiple answers, and for another it's all about 'lead time'…

Q: We are currently licensed in CA, NV, and AZ. Our corporation recently converted to a Texas LLC, and we need to update the Contractor Boards in each State. The former owners sold their Shares and the new owners switched the entity to a LLC. So, while we still have the same EIN, the ownership structure has changed, and I believe the need for re-registering with each Secretary of State will be required. Will new Contractor's license numbers be required?

A: Nevada has an option to complete Conversion paperwork with both their Secretary of State and the licensing Board. Therefore, you likely will not need a new Contractor's License Number in Nevada, but there is paperwork you will need to complete to update the license. For CA and AZ, the new registration and structure/ownership change, you will need to apply for new license numbers.

Q: I am interested in obtaining a Contractor's License for a new LLC I am setting up. Currently, I am licensed as a Sole Proprietor. Is there a way to time it so that the LLC license is not issued until January 1st? I would like to finish out the year as a Sole Prop and not incur taxes related to the LLC until 2022.

A: Given that you are thinking well enough ahead of time, you can certainly come close! With an appropriate amount of lead time, there are ways that you can get pretty close to your goal date by submitting required documents at "just the right time", but it does take some strategizing. I would be happy to discuss further with you so please contact my office.

Q: I am currently the Responsible Managing Employee (RME) for my Employer. I have an Inactive Sole Owner license. I would like to activate my personal license and start using it. Am I able to do this without my current Employer seeing? My intention is to resign once my license is Active, but for obvious reasons I don't want them finding out prematurely.

A: An RME is only permitted to be on one Active license at a time, so when you apply to activate your own license, the CSLB will not complete the activation until you Disassociate from your Employer's license. Once you complete a Disassociation Notice, your Employer will be notified that their Qualifying Individual has Disassociated and they will have 90 days to replace you on the license.

While knowledge is power, knowing where to go for the answers is half the battle. UPDATE: Cal-OSHA Issues A New Set Of Proposed Revisions To The ETS

Last week, on October 20, California's Division of Occupational Safety and Health ("Cal/OSHA") issued proposed revisions to the Emergency Temporary Standards ("ETS"). If approved, the revisions would be in place from January 14, 2022 until April 14, 2022.

COVID-19 Prevention: The proposed language no longer differentiates between fully-vaccinated and unvaccinated employees for purposes of indoor COVID-19 screenings. As a result, all employees, regardless of vaccination status, must wear facial coverings when being screened for COVID-19 indoors. In addition, the Standards Board no longer requires that employers maintain a separate COVID-19 prevention plan. Such plans may be integrated into the employers' injury and illness prevention plan as long as the IIPP has the COVID-19 protocols.

Investigating And Responding To COVID-19 Cases In The Workplace: Employers must also make testing available, at no cost, to all employees who had a close contact in the workplace with a COVID-19 case or in the case of an outbreak. Again, fully-vaccinated employees are no longer exempted from the close-contact testing requirements.

Close Contacts Within the Workplace:

1. Workplace Exclusions: Employers have more flexibility with respect to workplace exclusions. Now, following a close contact, an asymptomatic employee may continue to work if he or she tests negative for COVID-19 three to five days after the close contact; and wears a face covering and maintains 6-feet of physical distance from others in the workplace for at least 14 days following the last day of contact. In addition, the proposed regulations do not require employers to provide exclusion pay, although they are still responsible for providing information about benefits.

2. Return to Work:

   A COVID-19 case may return to work at least 10 days since the COVID-19 symptoms occurred; symptoms have improved and it has been at least 24 hours since a fever of 100.4 or more, without the use of fever-reducing medication. Such employees are no longer required to produce evidence of a negative PCR test.

   Close contacts may return to work seven days after the last contact, provided that they had a timely negative PCR test and wear a face covering and maintain 6-feet of physical distance for others in the workplace for at least 14 days following the last day of the close contact.

In addition, revisions impact the ETS sections concerning employer-provided housing and transportation. Namely, they ease restrictions when all employees living in employer-provided housing are fully vaccinated and require facial coverings during employer-provided transport.

Again, OSHA's ETS concerning COVID-19 continue to evolve as Californians return to work in greater numbers during this pandemic.
