

Capitol Connection Q&A for Contractors
By Shauna Krause, President, Capitol Services, Inc.

This first inquiry will take more than a 'New York minute' to answer! Maybe two? Another contractor needs a 'guide' on the best route to work in NV with his CA license. In the end, reading this can save you $500 you don't need to spend...

Q: First, I will start by telling you we are based in New York. I have been put in charge of making sure all of our contractor licenses are in order, and I am completely unfamiliar with the licensing procedures/requirements in CA, but it all seems much more complex than other States. Which is why I'm contacting you!

Our Limited Liability Company (LLC) has a "B" license in CA. The LLC has several subsidiaries that we also would like to get licensed and add sub-categories ("C-8", "C-9", etc). I tried to find information on the CSLB's website but I was only able to get so far with my inquiries. I was able to find, in several places on their website, that a Qualifying Individual can only be on up to three licenses at a time, however I also saw in one spot on their website that an Responsible Managing Employee (RME) can only be on up to two licenses. So, my first question is, is it two or three?

Secondly, I spoke with a Contracting Company we work with all the time, who holds many licenses in CA (they are the ones who referred me to you), and they were telling me that even though a Qualifier can be on more than one license, you can only move them around so many times in one year. Can you give me more information on that as I'm sure the issue will come up considering all the entities we will need to get licensed.

A: To answer your first question, a Responsible Managing Officer (RMO) can be on up to three Active licenses at a time under certain circumstances outlined in B&P Code Section 7068.1. An RME, on the other hand, is only permitted to be on up to two licenses at the same time under limited circumstances, also outlined in 7068.1. Feel free to give me a call to discuss if that's easier for you.

Q: As you know, you've helped me over the years with licensing assistance in California and Nevada. I own a company in Sacramento that wants to contract on the Nevada side. How do I use my Nevada license for the Sacramento Company? Is this just a paperwork thing?

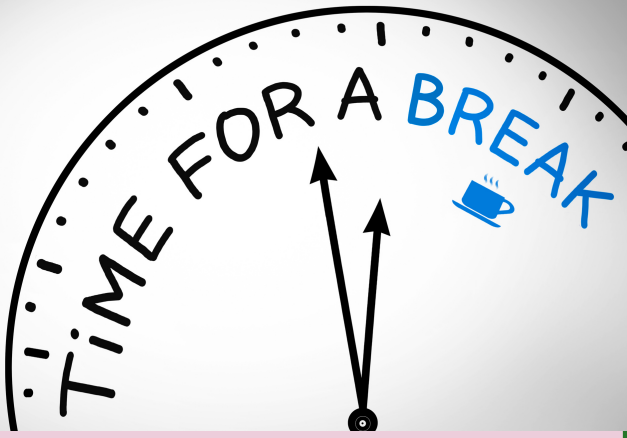

A: You would need to obtain a separate Nevada license for the Sacramento-based company. You can use your qualification to act as the Qualifying Individual, and then yes, the rest would be a "paperwork thing". If you remember, Nevada requires financial information for the applying entity in order to obtain a license. Let me if you want our assistance with the process.

FRAUD ALERT: The CSLB released a bulletin warning Contractors of a phone scam targeting licensees. In the scheme, an individual falsely identifying themselves as an employee of the CSLB demands a license "activation" fee of up to $500 be paid immediately over the phone or the license will be cancelled. The CSLB never calls licensees asking for credit cards or other confidential information. If you receive any such call, take down the caller's information and contact the CSLB.

Meal & Rest

Break Premium

The Labor Code requires that an employer who “fails to provide a meal or rest or recovery period . . . shall pay the employee one additional hour of pay at the employee’s regular rate of compensation for each workday that the meal or rest or recovery period is not provided.”

What does “regular rate of compensation” mean? The California Supreme Court just settled the matter in Ferra v. Loews Hollywood Hotel, LLC

The Supreme Court ruled that “regular rate of pay” is the same as used in the context of calculating overtime, which would include adjustments to the base hourly wage for such things as shift differentials and nondiscretionary bonuses.

. The Supreme Court also ruled that its decision here applies retroactively, not just going forward.

FIRE HAZARDS IN THE WORKPLACE: IGNITION SOURCES

INTRODUCTION

A fire needs three elements: fuel, oxygen, and an ignition source. Therefore, if you can control one of the elements, you can prevent an unwanted fire from starting in your workplace.

HOW TO IDENTIFY IGNITION SOURCES

An ignition source is any process or event capable of causing a fire or explosion. To prevent a fire or explosion, identify ignition sources in your workplace so you can be aware of them and control them. Look for:

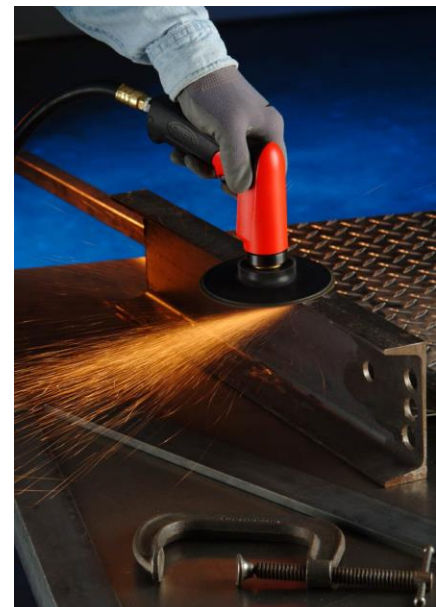

- Radiant bar or open flame fires/heaters
- Heat sources (i.e. lamps) near combustible materials
- Multi-point adaptors or trailing socket extension leads used in conjunction with electrical sockets and appliances
- Known faults in electrical circuits
- Evidence of smoking
- Open flames (including candles)
- Evidence of “Near Misses” on the walls or electrical sockets
 - Burns
 - Discolorations
 - Scorch Marks

COMMON IGNITION SOURCES

Some common ignition sources include, but are not limited to:

- Electrical equipment
- Internal combustion engines
- Metal tools striking metal surfaces
- Spark-producing equipment
- Static Electricity
- Friction from machinery bearings and drive belts
- Chemical reactions
 - Be especially aware of the auto-ignite temperature of flammable and combustible materials
- Hot surfaces and the obstruction of equipment ventilation (i.e. copy machines)
- Hot processes (i.e. welding, cutting, or grinding)
- Faulty electrical installations

FIRE HAZARDS IN THE WORKPLACE: IGNITION SOURCES

- Temporary or permanent cooking facilities
 - Sudden Decompression
 - Ovens, kilns, open hearths, furnaces or incinerators
 - Boilers, engines, and other oil burning equipment
 - Cooking equipment
 - Smoking materials (cigarettes, lighters, etc.)
 - Light bulbs
 - Light switches

CONTROLLING IGNITION SOURCES

Once you have identified the ignition sources in your workplace, you need to take steps to be sure they do not combine with fuel and start a fire:

- Keep ignition sources as far away from fuel as you can
 - Eliminate all nonessential ignition sources where flammable liquids are used or stored
- Keep flammable and combustible materials stored below their auto-ignite temperatures
- Use non-sparking tools when opening containers of flammable and combustible liquid
- Bond and ground your equipment to prevent static electricity discharge
- Do not use any ignition sources in areas with a flammable atmosphere
 - If an ignition source goes off in flammable atmosphere, an explosion is likely to result
- Only use equipment for the purpose it was intended
- Do NOT smoke in non-smoking areas

CONCLUSION

Working in the same place every day makes it easy to miss some hazards, but if you are aware of the types of ignition sources in your workplace and know to look for them, you will be able to control them and prevent unwanted fires.
