

Capitol Connection Q&A for Contractors
By Shauna Krause, President, Capitol Services, Inc.

Take a deep breath, there is no reason to panic when you get expert assistance. As another contractor also discovers it's best to check before getting in too 'deep', and I help another inquiry by 'filling in the blanks' about licensing...

Q: I just received a letter from the CSLB stating that my pending application is going to go void soon. When I look it up online it says I failed to appear for my exam. I don't recall ever receiving notice of an exam date. Is there anything I can do at this point?

A: Don't panic. When you fail to appear for an exam you are required to pay a $60 re-schedule fee and they will get you set up with a new date. You should also be sure that the CSLB has the correct address on file to ensure you receive your exam notification.

Q: I have been asked to re-construct a deck that has extensive dry rot in the joists. The dry rot is so close to the structure so the joists cannot be repaired via "sistering". When I replace the decking and railing, the structural support joists, which are 10 feet deep in the building also need to be replaced. Am I permitted to do this work with the "C-61"/"D-41" license?

A: As was my inclination, I double checked with the CSLB, and it would not be appropriate for a Siding and Decking contractor to replace the cantilevered structural supports of the deck you described. This type of work requires specialized engineering skills and would likely require an "A" (General Engineering) license.

Q: I recently applied for a Contractor's license and I used the word "Builders" in my business name. I checked the status online today and it says, "provide a corrected business name" and then has the word "builders" in parentheses. Do you know what this means?

A: I am assuming based on the notification you applied for a Sole Proprietor license. A Sole Proprietor cannot use plurals in their business name, such as "Builders" or "ABC & Sons" or "HVAC Installers". The CSLB considers the plural as a misrepresentation of personnel for a Sole Proprietor license.

Q: Is licensure required for grout and tile cleaning?

A: A license is not required for grout and tile cleaning. We frequently are asked if carpet/floor cleaning requires a contractor's license to which the answer is also no. The general rule (although there are some exceptions) is a license is required only if you are installing something. The key here is cleaning!

While knowledge is power, knowing where to go for the answers is half the battle. Get expert assistance immediately when you call 866-443-0657, email info@cutredtape.com, or write us at Capitol Services, Inc., 3609 Bradshaw Rd, Ste H, #343, Sacramento, CA 95827. NFPA Issues Construction Site Fire Safety Resources for Fire Prevention Week

by Cari Elofson-Callahan

The National Fire Protection Association (NFPA), an international nonprofit focused on eliminating death, injury, property, and economic loss due to fire, is observing its annual Fire Prevention Week by making extensive construction site fire safety materials available to employers and workers in the construction industry.

According to NFPA research, there were an average of 3,840 fires in structures under construction and 2,580 fires in structures under major renovation per year in 2013 through 2017. Fires in structures under construction caused an average of four deaths, 49 injuries, and $304 million in direct property damage annually, while those in structures under major renovation caused an average of eight deaths, 52 injuries, and $104 million in direct property damage annually. NFPA has made construction site fire safety materials available to help ensure that employers and workers on construction sites can identify fire hazards to prevent or reduce injuries, fatalities, construction delays, and increased expenses. Fire safety resources include:

Construction Site Fire Safety Fact Sheet provides measures for helping to prevent or minimize fire damage to structures during construction, alteration, or demolition by highlighting key information from NFPA® 241, Standard for Safeguarding Construction, Alteration, and Demolition Operations. This Fact Sheet includes highlights of key elements of a Fire Safety Program, including housekeeping, on-site security, fire protection systems and devices, rapid communication, and regular inspections.

Hot Work Safety Fact Sheet (in both English and Spanish) provides insights and statistics on hot work dangers, such as work involving burning, welding, or a similar operation that is capable of initiating fires or explosions, and activity involving flame, spark production, or heat. This Fact Sheet offers a process to help reduce hot work hazards, including:

- Recognize – Determine if fire risks exist before hot work is started.
- Evaluate – Determine hazards that could fuel a fire (flammable and combustible liquids or gases and simple combustibles).
- Control – Take appropriate steps to eliminate or minimize the hazards.
- Consider alternative methods, such as manual hydraulic shears, mechanical bolting, and compressed air-actuated fasteners.

Fires in Structures under Construction or Renovation Research provides extensive research data showing trends, causes, and statistics on construction fires in the US, including leading causes of fires, heat sources, equipment involved in ignition, and contributing factors.

NFPA construction site fire safety materials can be accessed on their website at <https://www.nfpa.org/Solutions/By-topic/Construction>. NFPA is urging facility managers, building owners, contractors, installers, and enforcement authorities having jurisdiction (AHJ) to help increase knowledge and raise awareness of construction fire hazards before they turn into disasters. Also, to learn more about fire safety at home, visit NFPA's Fire Prevention Week website <https://www.nfpa.org/Events/Events/Fire-Prevention-Week>.

RAINY CONDITIONS

INTRODUCTION

Rain can be an unanticipated danger in many worksites, and it is important that employees are aware of general safe practices when working in or around the rain.

HAZARDS

Rain increases the chance of accidents, especially in outdoor work areas, because it may lead to:

- Slippery surfaces
- Reduced grip on tools or other objects
- An increased danger around electrical energy sources
- Overspill of sewage systems
- Trench cave-ins or flooding
- Strong winds that can reduce the structural integrity of scaffolds, destabilize heavy equipment such as cranes, and cause dust and other small debris to fly around
- Lightning strikes

SAFE WORK PRACTICES

Even though you cannot control the rain, there are some steps that can be taken to protect your safety.

- Employees should move cautiously. The weather may tempt you to work more quickly than normal to get out of the rain, but this can be dangerous. The rain causes slick surfaces, so you must work slowly and deliberately – especially when climbing ladders!
- All tools should have textured or non-slip handles when working in high moisture conditions. Never use electrical tools or equipment not rated for outdoor use when working in the rain.
- Protective footwear with deep treads for traction should be worn to prevent slipping. Be sure to cover your boots or shoes with your pant legs instead of tucking them in.

RAINY CONDITIONS

- Wear layers when you will be working out in the rain for extended periods. Be certain that your coat is well-ventilated and does not restrict movement so it can be worn comfortably.

DRIVING IN THE RAIN

For those that are required to drive at work, it is vitally important to avoid accidents by:

- Keeping both hands on the steering wheel at all times.
- Turning on your headlights not only for your visibility, but so that other drivers can see you.
- Keeping at least five car lengths of space in between you and the car ahead of you.
- Driving at or BELOW the speed limit, because your traction is reduced in bad weather.
- Avoiding flooded roads and standing water, if possible.

CONCLUSION

If it is possible to avoid working in the rain during bad weather, that is the safest way to avoid rain-related accidents. If not, every precaution must be taken to be safe.
